MIAMI (CBSMiami) – A man and woman were arrested after police found they had left two small children alone in a car while they were inside the Hialeah Park Casino.

Police said they received a call from casino employees shortly a little after 1 a.m. about the children left alone in the car. Investigators said the children's parents, Tyrell Johnson and his girlfriend Josephine Laidler, had left the engine running, the air conditioner and the doors unlocked while they went inside to gamble.

Johnson and Laidler reportedly told police the kids were sleeping when they parked around midnight. Both have been charged with one count each of Child Neglect.

The children, a one and a four year old boy, are temporarily custody of the Department of Children and Families who said they have no history with this family.
